THIRTYSECOND YEAR

LANCASTER, KY., THURSDAY AFTERNOON, JULY 28, 1921.

NUMBER 17.

WILSON

In Bath Robe, Wrote His War Message On Porch.

Atlantic City, N. J.,—President Wilson's famous war message was not dictated, as has been generally accepted, in his office as a part of the day's routine, without any special difficulty, but was written under unusual circumstances after days and nights of hard thinking.

This was disclosed today by William C. Redfield, Secretary of Commerce in the Wilson cabinet, as he chatted with friends at the Ambassador hotel.

"The President had thought and worried days and nights over his war message, but it seemed the words for which he yearned would not come," said Mr. Redfield. "One evening he retired, quite discouraged, about 12 o'clock. Two hours later he was awakened by the force of his inspiration. At last he realized he had within his grasp the thoughts that had been eluding him. He switched on the light, sat on the side of his bed and jotted down stenographically the swiftly coming thoughts. When he had his message well under way he put on his bath robe and took his pencil and paper to the back porch.

"About an hour later Mrs. Wilson was awakened by the light which the President had forgotten to turn off. She looked for him and finally discovered him on the porch. She inquired solicitously about him, but he assured her he was all right, though a little hungry. That was enough for Mrs. Wilson. She went to the kitchen, not disturbing a maid, and delved into the refrigerator. She took out some milk and carried it to the President with a box of crackers, and he was grateful for her attention.

"So this wonderful message, whose strength, inspiration and beauty will keep it alive as long as the world endures, was written in the wee small hours with the moon shining, the only light, while its author in a bath robe sat on his back porch sipping milk and munching crackers."

LANCASTER'S CHANCE

A Great Game Of Ball.

Tomorrow, (Friday), the base ball fans of Lancaster and Garrard county will be treated to one of the very best ball games of the season when Mgr. Carpenter trots his men on the diamond to meet the strong team from Lexington.

Jim Parks, the star pitcher, will be on the mound for the Red's and they are eager to keep their record clean as they haven't met defeat this season, however, Carpenter's all stars are just as determined to defeat the visitors.

The stores, a large per cent of them close on Friday afternoon to allow their employees to go to the game, and as seats have been made this promises to be an afternoon well spent.

Let's all go out and root for the "OLD HOME TEAM."

Game called promptly by visiting umpire at 3:30 SHARP.

Home-Made Repellant Keeps Flies Off Cows

Spraying cows with a simple, home-made fly repellant is being used successfully by many Kentucky dairymen to protect their animals from attacks of these pests during the summer, according to J. J. Hooper, head of the dairy department of the College of Agriculture. Such a treatment not only gives relief to cows but also prevents the switching of tails which causes a large amount of bacterial contamination to enter the milk pail. A home-made remedy which has been used successfully on the college farm and one which is being adopted by many dairymen in the State is composed of two gallons of crude petroleum, such as is used for spraying hogs for lice, one gallon crude carbolic acid and one gallon of fish oil. These ingredients may be obtained at any drug store and can be mixed at home by dairymen.

FOUR HURT

In Auto Wreck Last Monday.

An automobile owned and driven by Lee Grow, accompanied by Jim and Albert Dorton, Clayton Hardwick and Elijah Stinnett, was overturned on the Richmond pike last Monday afternoon, just a few hundred yards west of the Hyattsville station, resulting in the serious injury of four of the occupants, while one, Clayton Hardwick, escaped without a scratch.

The most serious of those injured is Stinnett, who sustained a badly broken left arm, receiving a compound fracture below the elbow. Grow was cut severely about the face and head, as also were James and Albert Dorton. Medical help was dispatched to the scene and the injured carried to town and near by residences, where the wounds were dressed and first aid given. It was a narrow escape for the entire party.

In New Quarters.

Mr. Coy S. Sanders is now located just off the square on Lexington street, in the room recently vacated by the City restaurant and will be pleased to serve his old and many new customers. Give him a call and read some bargains he is offering in tires and tubes in this issue.

Harrodsburg Fair.

Many from this county are attending the Harrodsburg fair which is going on there this week, beginning last Tuesday morning and continuing through Friday. Some of the largest premiums ever offered by this association, is being offered this year and the entries are filled as never before. Smittie's famous band is furnishing the music.

Prolific Ewes.

Lewis Simpson, who lives on the Buckeye road, is the owner of two ewes that are wonders, when one thinks of the word prolific.

Last February these two ewes gave birth to two lambs each and these lambs were sold the last week in June for $10 a piece. On July 15th, these same ewes gave birth to two more lambs each and all are doing nicely. Eight lambs from two ewes in five months is a record to shoot at.

Dr. Gilbert To Leave Lancaster.

It is with a source of deep regret that we announce that Dr. J. S. Gilbert, who has lived among us for the past fifteen years, is together with his estimable family to leave Lancaster and take up their abode in Hazard, Ky. This decision was reached last week, when Dr. Gilbert returned from a trip to this magic city. The field looked so inviting and upon the urgent solicitation of some friends at Hazard, he decided to make this his future home. The best wishes of the community go out to them as they leave Lancaster and the desire of their friends is, that the move will prove a wise and profitable one.

GREAT BARBECUE

Hundreds Enjoy Feast On River Bank.

An old fashion Democratic barbecue was held last Friday on the banks of Dix River, near the iron bridge, on the Danville pike. The happy occasion brought out about five hundred voters from that section of the county and a more enthusiastic bunch could have hardly been gotten together. Several strong and stirring speeches were made before the dinner was announced.

A seven hundred pound beef, three sheep, two hundred loaves of bread and hundreds of other accessories needed to make a perfect "barbecue" was served and devoured eagerly by the hungry throng. It was indeed a happy and joyous occasion and one that should be repeated often, as a tendency to bind even closer together an already united democracy in Garrard county.

Robert Lunsford, charged with killing Jasper Brown about two weeks ago near Bryantsville, had his examining trial before Judge Stapp last Friday and was allowed bail in the sum of $3,500, which he gave. No testimony was introduced by the defense, which asked for bail on the evidence of the commonwealth.

"Bob Whites" For Kentucky.

Five thousand dollars will be spent by the State Game and Fish Commission to purchase Mexican Bob White quail for distribution in this State. The quail will be bought for spring delivery.

Dr. R. S. Tuttle, Executive Agent of the Game and Fish Commission, is back from Ballard county, where he made arrangements for the establishment of a camp next month for the purpose of catching fish from the ponds covering 1,300 acres of land, and overflow from the Ohio river. The fish will be put into Kentucky streams. The camp will be established a short distance from Barlow and the fish will be caught with seines.

During this year 37,000 fish were distributed by the Commission from the hatchery, which is an increase of 26,000 over last year.

W. T. WEST

May Head Prohibition Group.

Now Temporarily Located At Silver Creek.

The news that Mr. W. T. West of this city may be, and in all probability will be appointed to head the enforcement of prohibition in the Western district of the state, comes as a source of great satisfaction to his Lancaster friends from both political parties.

Mr. West is an uncle of Millard F. West, deputy Internal Revenue Collector at Washington and a former Lancaster boy. W. T. West is one of the most prominent and influential republicans in Central Kentucky and for a number of years was postmaster of this city. He is now located at Silver Creek as a guard at the Warwick distillery, and is now in line for this well deserved promotion.

An Associated Press dispatch from Louisville Saturday night stated that it was rumored in federal circles there that Robert Blackburn, of Lexington, would be appointed as group head of the Central district. Rumors current there were to the effect that D. W. Lytle, of Manchester, will be named group head of the Eastern district and that W. T. West, of Lancaster, probably will be the appointee as group head of the Western district.

Director Collins would not deny or confirm these rumors, saying that his recommendations for agents has not been completed, and that no recommendations have been confirmed by Commissioner Haynes.

While camping with a party of his young friends, Lorraine Daniels, 16 years old and son of Mrs. Emma Daniels, of this county, accidentally shot himself in the left arm last Friday, with a shot gun while attempting to kill a squirrel near Dudders Mill in Lincoln county.

It was thought for a while that he would lose his arm, but reports from the Good Samaritan Hospital in Lexington, where he was taken immediately after the accident, say there is hope of saving the arm.

The unfortunate accident is regretted by the host of friends of Lorraine, and all are trusting that he will come through with good results under the splendid care which he is now receiving.

Twelve Candidates Out For Team Which Plans To Enter Student Judging Contest at National Swine Show.

LOGAN WEST TO TRY FOR EVENT.

Plans are being made to enter a student's judging team from the College of Agriculture in the intercollegiate swine judging contest which will be held in connection with the national swine show at Peoria, Ill., October 3, according to an announcement made here today by L. J. Horlacher, a member of the college animal husbandry staff who is coaching the team candidates. Should the plans materialize this will be the first year that Kentucky has been represented in swine show contest. Five other colleges have largely signified their intentions of entering teams, Mr. Horlacher said.

The team of five students and one alternate which will represent the State in the contest will be picked from the group of 12 candidates who are trying out for the team to represent Kentucky in the students' stock judging contest at the International Livestock Exposition in Chicago, November 26th. Those who are candidates for the two teams include Frank J. Wedekemper, Louisville; Ralph O. Wilson, Robinson, Ill.; Courtland L. Short, Owensboro; Philip Edwards, Owensboro; Clyde Watts, Harrodsburg; Scroggins Jones, Buechel; Robert R. Arnold, Morgan; William G. Finn, Burlington; J. W. Chandler, Van Cleve, Cave City; Logan West, Paint Lick; Paul Gregory, Frankfort; and William Howell, Greensburg. The candidates are juniors and seniors in the college.

They will also take trips to prominent stock farms in the State for the same purpose in addition to practicing judging on the stock at the college farm.

In the swine show contest the students will compete for $450 in team prizes and $150 in individual prizes. The winning team will receive $125. The second team prize will be $100, third $80, fourth $50 and sixth $35. Individual prizes will range from $50 for the highest scoring individual to $25 for the fourth highest scoring man.

Examination For Clerk.

An examination for the position of auxiliary clerk, to fill a vacancy in the Lancaster Postoffice, caused by the resignation of Mrs. Dolly Brown, will be held in this city, Saturday, August 20th, by Homer L. Bland, who is temporary secretary of the local board. The salary is 60 cents an hour and calls for only four hours work a day.

Halcomb-Broadus.

Miss Mary Belle Halcomb, attractive and talented daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Halcomb, of Bryantsville and Mr. Lewis Broadus, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Broadus, were united in marriage last Friday afternoon at Wilmore, Ky., Rev. G. S. Conant, of that place officiating.

The marriage of this popular couple was the most notable event in the social whirl of this community and is the culmination of a long and congenial courtship. No more talented or popular young lady ever lived in Bryantsville. She has been the Record's correspondent from that section for several months and her letters have been of unusual interest and were read with pleasure by our numerous patrons in that community. Mr. Broadus is a successful and energetic young farmer and is certainly to be congratulated upon winning the hand of this charming young lady.

The best wishes of the Record together with a throng of friends, is extended to them as they embark upon the matrimonial sea, and trust that their married life may be a long, happy and useful one.

GREAT INTEREST

Shown By Farmers And Tobacco Growers At Meeting Here Last Monday.

James E. Stone, of Lexington Explains Plan in Detail.

MANY PLEDGE THEIR CROPS.

At a meeting of the tobacco growers of Garrard county, held at the Circuit Court room, in this city, Mr. James E. Stone, of Lexington, presented the Sapiro plan of co-operative marketing and after a thorough and complete presentation and the time having arrived for the selection of a chairman for this county, on motion made, seconded and carried, Lewis L. Walker was unanimously elected with full authority to perfect the county organization and said organization to be composed as follows: In addition to the chairman; An Executive Committee of not less than (5) five, a Chairman for each of the four magisterial districts, a Chairman for each of the seventeen precincts and a Secretary. The Chairman for each precinct is to appoint three assistants. John M. Farra was asked by the Chairman to act as temporary Secretary until the complete organization was made. The Chairman called for those who would assist in securing signers to the marketing contracts to come forward and give their names and the following agreed to assist in this work:

LANCASTER, R. L. Elkin, Noah Marsee, Ben Robinson, J. B. Woods, Sr., Jim Hamilton, Henry A. Moore, C. C. Sowders and T. C. Rankin. BRYANTSVILLE, Jas. Leavell, David Rankin.

BUCKEYE, Sherman Gay. PAINT LICK, Tandy Center, Wm. Marshbanks, W. C. Winn, Woods Walker, I. B. Sheppard, A. L. Davis, G. M. Green, Clarence Green, Robert L. Creech, John Metcalf, D. L. Gabbard, R. G. Woods, H. L. Francis, C. A. Dillon, Chas. Graves and Jesse Reynolds.

The Chairman presented contracts for signature and the following came forward and signed the contract:

C. A. Dillon, 6 acres, 3000 lbs.; C. W. Graves 9 acres, 5000 lbs.; Woods one-half of 45 acres, 19,750 lbs.; G. M. Green, 5 acres, 4,000 lbs.; H. S. Gay, 8 acres, 4,000 lbs.; C. C. Sowders, 3 acres, 2,000 lbs.; V. A. Lear, 15 acres, 15,000 lbs.; Wm. Marshbanks, one-half 30 acres, 30,000 lbs.; Tandy Center one half 10 acres, 10,000 lbs.; L. W. McQuerry, 7 acres, 3,000 lbs.; R. W. McQuerry, 5 acres, 2,500 lbs.; Irvin Faulkner, 4 acres, 17,500 lbs.; Bill Eady Faulkner, 6 acres, 3,000 lbs.; Grover Gastineau, 8 acres, 3,000 lbs.

From the interest that was manifested at this meeting, there isn't the remotest doubt but what the farmers and growers of Garrard county are heartily in sympathy with the Sapiro plan of marketing their tobacco, and when speaker Stone asked for an expression from the audience by asking those who favored the plan to stand, it seemed practically unanimous as fully 90 per cent of the audience arose to their feet and heartily cheered the speaker. Mr. Stone's explanation of the co-operative marketing plan, was highly complimented, and showed clearly that he had the subject well in hand and was able to impart his knowledge in a simple and convincing way to his hearers.

He told of the slump in the opening sales of the North Carolina tobacco markets and read from the News and Observer, of Raleigh, N. C., a daily of that city, owned and published by Josephus Daniels, ex-secretary of the United States Navy, under date of July 20th, 1921, in which it said:

"Leaf tobacco prices on markets in Southeastern N. C., South Carolina and Georgia, were more than fifty per cent under the average of the opening day last year, according to reports of the initial sales of the 1921 season yesterday from tobacco towns in the three states. Prices ranging from five to twelve dollars per hundred, whereas, last year the average was from $20 to $25 and over. The preceding year the tobacco sold at an average from $35 to $45 per hundred pounds.

Although no reports of sales being stopped were received, the prices generally were disappointing to business men. On the basis of the initial prices, tobacco growers apparently will not be able to realize an appreciable profit despite the fact that the crop this year has been produced at a greatly reduced expense as compared to the year of 1920."

How Markham Lost His Cook

By DOROTHY WHITCOMB.

(© 1921, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lindsay's mentality was not devoid of an element of humor in its composition, and the incongruity of his mission appealed to this latent sense as he stepped quietly out of his house at night and looked back into the well-lit parlor. He saw his wife seated in her chair, reading as calmly as though he had gone out upon the most ordinary visit to some friend. She hardly raised her eyes when he said good-by to her, yet there had been an emotional scene only that morning, and it was this that had moved Lindsay to his resolution.

He could endure his wife's complaints no longer. He was resolved to put an end to them for ever. And he was going like a thief by night to steal the most precious jewel of Markham's household.

He had fought down the impulse toward dishonor for many weeks. But now the time had come when he could resist no longer. Life without Lucille would have no zest. His home had grown to be no home to him. His very food had lost its savor.

Markham had brought her back to America after his last visit to France. When she arrived she was a simple country girl, innocent, ignorant of the language of her adopted country. She had met few men; she had never even been engaged before. And once in Markham's power he watched her jealously. He would hardly permit her to leave home.

Strangely enough, it was Mrs. Lindsay who had first met her, and it was she who had introduced Lindsay on one of the rare occasions when Lucille had snatched a short respite from Markham's tyranny. It was at a friend's house Mrs. Lindsay was taken at once with the pale, beautiful French girl. But it was Lindsay who had pursued the acquaintance.

Markham and he were not on friendly terms. He knew enough of the man's cowardly nature to be aware that, once Lucille and he were together, there would be no pursuit. At last the time had arrived when he was able to propose his plan.

She looked at him with veiled terror, and yet with a joy that she could hardly conceal.

"I will give you more than Markham can ever give you," he said gaily and then outlined his plan. Markham was not always home before nightfall. Let her appoint some day when he would be detained at his office. It would then be the simplest thing for him to cover the two miles between their houses and meet her after dark when there were no prying eyes to see. She must have her possessions—what she could pack into a suitcase—ready, and he would take her away, never to see Markham again.

"But if he comes after me?" she asked, still half afraid.

Lindsay had laughed at that, and his contempt for Markham seemed to find an answer in the girl's soul. She told him many little details of the man; his tyranny, his greed. Once, when she had not prepared a dish exactly to his liking he had sworn at her. She had never forgotten that. Yes, she would go.

And Lindsay, looking back at his wife in her chair, felt not the least compunction. For he was going to end her complaints effectively and forever.

Markham was not to be home that night. So much he had discovered, and he had sent Lucille a message by a trusted confidant. Now he strode out into the dark eagerly, his mind tense upon his mission, every nerve tingling with the thought of the ecstatic happiness that lay in store for him.

And she was waiting for him. As he approached the unit house where the man he hated lived he saw her, a sinuous shadow in the doorway.

"Lucille!" he whispered.

And so he led her way.

The suitcase was weighty, but he walked as though he trod on air, and Lucille strode at his side. At last they stood outside his house again, and, looking through the window, Lindsay perceived that his wife still occupied the same chair and held the same book. All the emotions that had possessed him had been entirely unknown to her; she read as tranquilly as though nothing were at stake.

Then a sense of unutterable love for this quiet woman in the chair welled up in Lindsay's heart. He turned to the girl and spoke almost curtly.

"I am going in to tell her," he said.

"To tell your wife?"

"Yes—everything. But wait for me. I shall not abandon you. Have no fear. It will be but a moment."

The waiting girl saw Lindsay disappear within the house; she saw him bend over his wife, saw her start up incredulously and look at him with eyes that searched his soul. Then she was running out of the house with Lindsay at her side.

"You! Lucille!" she cried.

"Yes, madame."

"And you have come to stay? You will not leave us?" She turned to her husband. "O, my dear," she cried, "to think that we should own the only French cook in Stapleton. And it's true!" She seized the girl's hands and almost pulled her through the door.

Way to Find Out.

"They say the Volstead act law won't apply to the ocean."

"I think I'll run away to sea."

American Legion News

Good-by Broadway, Hello France, song relic of the war, will again be sung when 250 members of the American Legion sail August 3rd, from New York for a tour of the erstwhile battle-centers of France. To experience the "grand and glorious" feeling of going to France without having to worry about getting shot, is the dream of nearly every member of the former A. E. F. This desire to return to the old battle fronts is indicated by the rapidity with which the quota for the Legion's pilgrimage is being filled. John G. Wicker, Jr., chairman of the pilgrimage arrangements committee, has opened headquarters at 627 West Forty-third street, New York, and is daily receiving telegrams an letters requesting reservations. Representatives for the trip are selected thru the various state departments of the Legion. Expenses are borne by the individual members of the party, except in cases of local posts defraying expenses of representatives selected by them. It will require about six weeks to make the trip, including sailing time. An elaborate program of events in honor of the Legion pilgrimage has been announced by French Government.

"No man has a monopoly on fame and fortune. No man, group of men or governmental system can bar the individual from his inalienable right to progress," writes Judge Kennisaw Mountain Landis, in the current issue of the American Legion Weekly.

The quota of American Legion members who next month will join in the Legion's pilgrimage to France is rapidly being filled. Every state will be represented on the trip and applications for reservations are being made through the various state departments. Two of the early reservations were for the Legionnaires who will represent the "Lost Battalion" of the 308th Infantry and the 107th Infantry of the Twenty-seventh Division. These representatives will be enlisted men chosen by popular vote.

Brigadier-General Asher Miner, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., who lost a leg in France, was one of the speakers at the banquet tendered by the New York Shipbuilding Corporation on the occasion of the trial trip of the new liner, "American Legion." General Miner was responding to Major-General Price, of Philadelphia, who told how his compatriot, after losing his leg had agreed to go before his men for moral effect. "The loss of that leg," declared General Miner, "is justified by the privilege of being a member of the American Legion."

Service bureaus of the American Legion have become accustomed to unusual requests, but the one received recently by the bureau at Omaha, Neb., is unique. The request came over the telephone from the possessor of sweet feminine voice. "I would like to borrow two of your ex-service men for the evening," said the voice. "They are to be escorts in a theatre party." "The request was complied with."

The American Legion post at Mulberry, Kan., which won first prize in the recent membership contest reports that fifty of its total enrollment of sixty-six men are union labor men. The other sixteen are merchants, farmers, clerks, doctors and school teachers.

The Loyal Order of Dads has been founded at Ft. Myers, Fla., by "Dad" Sheldon Foote, who has announced that membership will be open to all fathers of ex-service men of the army, navy and Marine Corps of the United States, who served in the Spanish-American or World wars, or who are now in service. The members will encourage clean, patriotic living in their communities, respective of party, politics, race or creed. The organization will be affiliated with the American Legion. The headquarters will be at Ft. Myers.

Charles W. Barlett, chairman of the distinguished visitors committee of the national convention of the American Legion, will go to France next month as a member of the commission to represent Missouri in the purchase of a site for a memorial in France to Missouri's soldier dead. While in France Mr. Barlett will call upon Marshall Foch and extend to him personally the written invitation which the latter has accepted to attend the national convention of the Legion at Kansas City October 31st, and November 1st, and 2nd.

Roy L. Rinker Post of the American Legion at Apache, Okla., has offered a reward to any person who will find an ex-service man within ten miles of the town who is not a member of the American Legion.

Fattening Market Birds Brings Increased Profit.

Profits from poultry on many Kentucky farms could be increased by feeding cockerels a fattening ration several days before they are placed on the market instead of selling them while they are in thin condition, according to poultry specialists at the College of Agriculture. Feeding the market birds a ration of this kind not only makes a bigger bird but also one which will have higher quality as a broiler or roaster. The most expensive part of rearing a chick is building the frame and the most profitable part that of putting on the flesh or fat. As a usual thing the poultry raiser does the costly part of building the frame and leaves the profit to the packer or dealer who increases the value of the bird by a few days of proper feeding.

The basis of a fattening ration should be corn meal with skim or sour milk. A porridge made up of a mash with corn meal as a basis and a mixture of several other grains has been found to be a satisfactory fattening ration. Even while being the porridge the chicks should be supplied with fresh water twice each day.

Society Has Cheap Rent.

The London Zoological society occupies ground in Regent's park measuring 34 acres, for which it pays a little more than $1,500 a year. The estimated value of the land commercially is more than $500,000 a year.

Cheap Power.

A scientist has asserted that there is enough latent energy in one's little finger to run all the trains in the United Kingdom for a few minutes. Now, if somebody would invent a vest-pocket dynamo to enable a man to make use of this energy we'd all be in clover.

Patience and Insensibility.

A dogmatic insensibility is as different from patience as a pool from a harbor. Into the one, insouciance naturally sinks us; but if we arrive at the other it is by encountering many an adverse wind and rough wave, with a more skillful pilot at the helm than self, and a company under better command than the passions.—Dilwyn.

Cover Crops Will Furnish Fall And Spring Pastures.

In spite of the fact that cover crops are not grown primarily for pasture purposes they may be used to good advantage in furnishing green feed for livestock during the late fall and early winter, according to soils and crops specialists. Pasturing the crop when the fields are solid so that trampling will not materially reduce the value of the cover crop is a safe way to supply the succulence of silage without the use of a silo and to supply it to the smaller animals not commonly fed silage, according to R. E. Stephenson, crops extension specialist from the College of Agriculture.

A rye pasture has been found to be of great value to pigs, sheep, calves, colts and chickens and a cover crop could well be sown for this purpose alone. Enough pasturing may be done to pay for the cost of the seed and growing the crop, while the value of it from the fertility standpoint is clear profit, for the farmer. The cover crop fills another need by furnishing pasture feed during a dry fall. An early rye field is of material help in such a time as this since it enables the farmer to increase the carrying capacity of his farm and at the same time hold his animals in better flesh or higher productiveness. The specialists are urging that farmers sow cover crops this fall on all fields which would otherwise remain idle during the winter.

They say the cost of living is coming down, and if it keeps on descending some day we may be able to see it with the aid of a telescope.

PLUMBING NEEDS DAILY CLEANING

Ounce of Prevention Is Worth More Than Pound of Cure With Plumbers' Bills.

HOW TO CARE FOR FIXTURES

Waste Pipes Should Be Flushed Thoroughly to Carry Off Hardened Grease and Accumulation of Miscellaneous Dirt.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Many plumbers' bills would be avoided, the health of the family better safeguarded, and the appearance of the plumbing improved if the following suggestions, made by the home economics office of the United States Department of Agriculture, were followed by the housewife:

Stoppage in pipes is often due to hardened grease or to an accumulation of hair and lint. The waste pipes should be flushed thoroughly after using, so that the waste is carried out of the house pipes and the trap left full of clean water. A trap in a waste pipe is a curved section so arranged that water remains in it and prevents the passage of sewer gas into the house. If the water left in the trap is not clean, decomposition may take place and odors and gases may come from the impurities in the water itself. Precautions should be taken to prevent oil and grease from going down the waste pipe from the kitchen sink, because being lighter than water they tend to remain floating on the surface of the water in the trap.

Use of Cleansing Mixtures.

Occasionally more than cold, or even hot, water is necessary to clear out the accumulated grease, lint, miscellaneous dirt, and bits of refuse. Washing soda is ordinarily strong enough for bathroom pipes, and may be used in the proportion of one part "liquid" soda (made by boiling one pound of washing soda and one quart of water in an old kettle) to twelve parts hot water, or one pound of dry soda thoroughly dissolved in three gallons of boiling water. The drain pipe from the kitchen sink may sometimes need a stronger cleanser, even if it is thoroughly cleaned and flushed after each dishwashing, and for this purpose caustic potash is efficacious, but must be used carefully—the hands must be protected and the potash must not be allowed to touch porcelain or porcelain-lined sinks, because it may destroy the glaze. One pound of crystals dissolved in two quarts of water should be poured down the drain. About half an hour later the pipe should be flushed with clear water. Caustic soda, although sometimes recommended, is not desirable, because it is likely to unite with the grease and form a hard soap, that is difficult to remove from the pipes.

Fine scourers may be used on all fixtures. For porcelain and enameled-iron fixtures kerosene and whiting are especially good; the kerosene cuts the grease and the whiting supplies the abrasion. Some of the commercial cleaning preparations used for enameled and porcelain fixtures contain scourers so gritty that they scratch the surface, and thus make the work of cleaning gradually harder. Nothing coarser than whiting should be allowed.

Should Be Cleaned Daily.

Bathroom fixtures should be cleaned daily. Tubs and bowls should be scrubbed with a fine scourer or with water containing a little kerosene, rinsed with clear hot water and wiped dry. The stains made by water containing an excess of iron may be removed from porcelain or porcelain-lined tubs and bowls with oxalic acid solution, which is a poison and must be entirely washed off. The overflow pipes should be flushed occasionally with hot water, for dirt and grease are likely to collect and decompose there.

The water-closet should be kept scrupulously clean. A daily cleaning is necessary with hot soapuds or soda solution, and a long-haired brush, and flushed again. Then the seat, the cover, the chain, and the handle should be washed and wiped. All cloths and utensils used in cleaning the bathroom should be scalded and dried, preferably in the open air. The crust of lime which is sometimes deposited by hard water can be removed from porcelain and porcelain-lined fixtures with hydrochloric acid. This acid is very poisonous and is also injurious to the skin and to many materials, including the metals used in plumbing. It must, therefore, be handled with extreme care. Gloves should be worn when using it. To clean the bowl of a closet, bail out as much water as possible, pour in about a pint of commercial hydrochloric acid (sometimes called muriatic acid), and let this stand for several hours, or until the crust crumbles when poked with a stick. Then flush with a large quantity of water. The water in the tank is not enough; more must be poured in by hand in order to dilute the acid and carry it away rapidly. In a porcelain-lined sink or bathtub the acid must not be allowed to stand on the soiled earthenware, because it may get through to the metal underneath and eat that away. It must, therefore, be applied drop by drop to the lime and flushed out with plenty of water as soon as the crust begins to crumble when pressed.

SUBSTITUTE FLOURS FOR MAKING BREADS

People Tire of Wheat Served Three Times Daily.

Corn Meal, Peas, Hickory or English Walnuts Cut Into Small Pieces and Other Cereals Are Useful to Break Monotony.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Wheat served three times a day is apt to grow tiresome if not varied by bread made from other cereals. The following recipes are recommended by the home economics kitchen of the United States Department of Agriculture:

Brown Bread.
3 cups corn meal, 1 teaspoonful salt, 1 cupful flour, 3 cups water, 1 teaspoonful baking powder, 1 cupful molasses.

Mix the dry ingredients and add the molasses and the water. Pour the mixture into a greased coffee can or steaming tin, steam it for two hours, and then bake in a moderate oven for one-half hour.

Nut Bread.
3 cups flour, 1 cupful English walnut or pecan ing powder, 1 cupful salt, 1 cupful sugar, 1 cupful milk, 1 egg.

Sift together the flour, the baking powder, the salt, and the sugar, and add the milk, the egg, well beaten, and the nut meats. Place the mixture in a well-buttered pan and let rise for one hour. Bake for three-fourths hour in a moderate oven.

Rolls Oats and Wheat Bread.
1 1/2 cups liquid 1/2 cake yeast, (milk, water, potato) 1 tablespoonful of sugar or corn syrup, 1/2 cupful freshly 2 teaspoonful salt, mashed potato, 1 1/2 cups ground flour, 3/4 cupful wheat rolled oats.

Make a sponge of all the ingredients except the rolled oats, and let it rise in a warm place until very light. Add the rolled oats, which have been ground fine in the food chopper and measured after grinding. Let the dough rise until it doubles in bulk, then knead and mold it into a loaf, brush with melted fat after it has been placed in a pan, and allow it to double in bulk again. Bake in a hot oven for 1 1/2 hours.

IRONING DRUDGERY REDUCED

Use Clean, Smooth Irons and Have Well-Padded Board or Table at Comfortable Height.

Have a clean, well-padded board or table set at comfortable height.

Use clean, smooth irons. Rubbing them occasionally with wax or paraffin will keep them in good condition. Rusty or dirty irons should be scoured with sand soap or bath brick, washed, wiped dry, heated, waxed and rubbed smooth.

Have clothes evenly dampened and smoothly and tightly rolled.

Iron fabrics with the lengthwise thread, if possible, and iron as large a space at one time as possible. Most materials look best if ironed thoroughly dry.

Iron first the parts that dry out quickly and that will hang off the board when finished.

For silks, woolsens and colored materials use medium-hot irons. Iron all these materials on the wrong side, except aprons and children's dresses that need a smooth surface to keep clean longer. Silks and woolsens may be ironed on the right side if covered with dampened cheesecloth, say household specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Pineapples aid digestion and should be eaten after meals.

Try using a long-handled oiled mop for cleaning your car.

Never add sugar to waffle batter. Serve with sugar or sirup.

In making a white cake, substitute two egg whites for a yolk.

When washing keep a stiff vegetable brush handy to use on dirty neckbands, wristbands.

Features Of Blue Grass Poultry Show Completed.

With the development of plans for the poultry show which will be held in connection with the Blue Grass Fair, Sept. 5 to 10, considerable interest is being shown in the event by farmers in blue grass and surrounding counties, according to A. S. Chapin, poultry extension specialist from the College of Agriculture, A. J. McFadden, superintendent of the College of Agriculture poultry farm and Lawrence Gentry, Lexington, will act as superintendents of the show while Len Rawnsley, of the Hurstbourne

Farms, Louisville, and Mr. Chapin will judge the exhibits. Features of the show will be a display of water fowls and pheasants by Mr. Gentry, a boys' and girls' poultry club exhibit by County Agent W. R. Gabbert and an educational exhibit by the College of Agriculture.

The exhibit of the college will show the methods of culling out the loafer hens and the process of determining which hens are the layers, according to J. H. Martin, in charge of the college poultry work. It will also emphasize the necessity for a balanced ration in feeding hens and show the methods of mixing such a ration. Farmers desiring information concerning the show may obtain it from Ken Walker, secretary of the Blue Grass Fair Association, Lexington, Mr. Chapin announced.

The British government owes the government of the United States some billions of dollars of money borrowed from us during the war. None of the principle has ever been paid, and only a small pittance of the interest due has been collected. The United States owed England $35,000,000 for transporting American soldiers to France in British ships. The British presented their bill the other day and the government at Washington promptly paid it. In the meantime thousands of our disabled soldiers are neglected and in want. Can you beat it?

Your Investment in a

BUICK

IS PROTECTED

The prudent buyer of an automobile will demand, in addition to getting satisfactory service out of his car, that his investment shall be protected.

The Lancaster Buick Company is not only willing, but anxious, that the public shall judge the Buick car and itself by this standard.

The Buick car is correctly designed and properly constructed along lines of proven value by a factory with every needed resource, both material and financial.

Its distribution is world-wide, its authorized service stations and parts supplies are never out of reach.

Here in Lancaster the Lancaster Buick Company stands squarely behind the more than two hundred Buicks now registered in Garrard County. Its already large investment is being daily increased for the protection of the investment of each of these owners. It maintains a large and well-equipped service station, has provided for service for every one of the twenty-four hours in the day, carries an ample stock of parts and supplies, and is ever on the alert to advance the interests of its owners.

Its entire plant, investment and energies are devoted to Buicks exclusively.

Not only this, but its policy in trading in used Buicks insures fairness to buyer and seller alike. It does not and will not rob one to pay the other.

As a result of this fixed policy, the Buick car in Garrard County, whether new or used, stands in a class by itself. Its ownership is eagerly sought and it is the unquestioned standard of value in its price range.

Corn-Ear Worm Damage To Tomatoes Checked By Arsenate Of Lead.

Spraying with arsenate of lead is the best means of controlling corn-ear worms which have caused considerable damage to tomatoes in many parts of the State during the summer, according to Harrison Garman, entomologist at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station. The insects attack the tomatoes near the base of the stem, eating holes into the fruit which nearly always render it unfit for food. The pest is also known to the cotton grower as the cotton-boll worm.

To control the pest the plants should be sprayed thoroughly with arsenate of lead using one pound of paste to ten gallons of water or one pound of powder to 20 gallons of water. Additional protection for the tomatoes from all classes of pests may be obtained by combining the Bordeaux mixture with the arsenate of lead spray. Stirring the soil in the fall of the year to expose the winter stages of the insect also have been found helpful in controlling the ravages of the pest the following year. If the arsenate of lead spray is applied a short time before the tomatoes are ripe they should be thoroughly washed and peeled before being used for food.

Advice From James J. Hill.
If a young fellow doggedly bucks the world and circumstances without cause or reason all the time, he is liable to get nothing more than a sore head. He must know how to take advantage of opportunities, to use his brains; in short a young man who has no brains ought at least to have enough animal sense to find it out and learn to depend upon and get what benefit he can from people that have got brains.—James J. Hill.

FINELY GROUND LIMESTONE Makes Biggest Crop Yield.

Experimental results show that limestone must be ground to a fineness equal to that of flour in order to give quick results in sweetening the soil and increasing crop yields, according to R. E. Stephenson, crops extension specialist from the College of Agriculture. However, all of the material applied should not be ground this fine since it leaches out rapidly and allows the soil to become sour again. When some coarse material is used with the fine this remains in the soil and keeps it sweet. A good policy to follow is to use stone all of which will pass a ten-mesh sieve, according to the specialist. When this is done the right proportion of fine and coarse material is obtained. Stone screenings and waste from one-fourth-inch size down to dust have been found to give satisfactory results.

Experiments have shown that stone ground to pass a screen of 100 meshes to the linear inch resulted in a 135 per cent crop increase the first year but the soil was beginning to sour again in three years although twice as much limestone had been used as was required to neutralize the original acidity. This was due to the fact that the very fine stone leached rapidly. The 60-mesh stone resulted in an 86 per cent crop increase but the soil was still sweet at the end of three years. When the 20-mesh stone was used it was so coarse that three years were required for it to react sufficiently to sweeten the soil. A 33 per cent crop increase was obtained with this size stone. When eight-mesh stone was used the soil never became sweet and only 14 per cent increase was made by the crop. There was no fine mixed with the coarse in this size stone.

Farmers will profit by using limestone which is fairly pure containing 90 per cent or more of calcium carbonate. Impurities do not harm the material but the cost of handling impure stone including crushing, hauling and freight charges is excessive when tons of actual limestone are considered.

Bordeaux Spray Stops Potatoes Blight Losses

Losses in the Kentucky potato crop through the attacks of late blight which annually reduces the yield of spuds on many farms may be stopped by spraying the crop with Bordeaux mixture, according to J. S. Gardner, extension specialist in vegetable gardening from the College of Agriculture. The disease is worse in some years than in others but there are always loose spores of it which live through the winter in many ways and attack the potato crop when the proper kind of weather arrives. Hot muggy days are favorable ones for attacks of blight.

The Bordeaux mixture spray may be prepared at home by combining copper sulphate, lime and water or it may be bought ready mixed. The sprayer may be a bucket pump or a barrel pump, the important thing being to get sufficient pressure to make a misty spray which should be driven with force enough to reach into the plant thoroughly covering it. On areas larger than four acres it is of advantage to have an engine-driven pump. Potato growers who have had losses by the attacks of blight may secure information as to the proper spray and the apparatus necessary to apply it by writing to the Experiment Station, Lexington, Ky.

Don't Prod Your Liver to Action

NR Quickly Overcomes Bilelessness, Constipation, Sick Headache, No Griping or Pain. Guaranteed.

The organs of digestion, assimilation and elimination—the stomach, liver and bowels—are closely allied, and the proper action of any of these organs is largely dependent upon the correct functioning of all the others. A better, safer plan is to strengthen and tone the whole digestive and eliminative system with Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets), which not only brings immediate relief, but genuine and lasting benefit. It acts on the stomach, liver, bowels and kidneys, improves digestion and assimilation, overcomes bilelessness, corrects constipation and quickly relieves sick headache. Co-operative Marketing Of Tobacco Success In California.

Unqualified endorsement of the Sapiro plan for the co-operative marketing of burley tobacco in Kentucky was given by Alfred A. Aaram, of Fresno, California, president of the Associated Tobacco Growers of California, who arrived here Thursday, says the Lexington Herald.

Mr. Aaram, a nephew of the late Byron McClelland, horseman, in addition to coming to Lexington to visit relatives, has the purpose of interesting tobacco men in a proposed national organization for the benefit of the tobacco industry generally throughout the United States.

"I know the plan which Mr. Sapiro has suggested for marketing of tobacco in Kentucky. I am familiar with his work and I am confident that the plan he has offered is sound and one that will unquestionably bring to the tobacco growers of Kentucky benefit of which they have never dreamed," said Mr. Aaram.

"In California we have had co-operative marketing of tobacco for the last eight years. In all we have been growing tobacco for but 15 years and our efforts which resulted in the organization along the co-operative plan were gradual. We, the growers, realized that we were not protecting our own interests by selling individually, and for this reason it seemed that as if by common consent we joined together and formed our association which has grown to such proportions that today not a single pound of tobacco is grown in the entire state that is not disposed of through the association.

"You will, of course, realize that in California we grow nothing but Turkish tobacco and that our total production at the present time is but slightly over 5,000,000 pounds. But our interests are the same as the Burley growers. The basic principles are the same, and I believe that such an organization in Kentucky would obtain the same results as it has in our state.

"The position we take is this. The manufacturer, the jobber, the wholesaler and the retailer never fail to make a profit—the farmer or the grower is the only one that is ever asked to stand a loss, and we believe that if the farmer cannot make a profit on his crop, then that crop is not worth raising. We are not unreasonable in our dealings with the buyers—in fact we are sympathetic with their side of the question, but we always insist that the grower be protected, that not he alone be called upon to stand a loss if there is to be any loss."

SEED PLOT Will Insure High-Yielding Potatoes.

Experiments of Kentucky potato growers together with experimental results indicate that the best means of producing and maintaining a high-yielding strain of potatoes is to grow a seed plot from year to year to furnish the foundation for succeeding crops, according to A. J. Olney, potato specialist from the College of Agriculture. During the latter part of July and the first part of August has been found to be the best period in which to plant this plot for next year's seed, according to the specialist. Irish Cobbler and Early Ohio are perhaps the best early varieties for Kentucky while Bull Moose, Rural Russett, Carman No. 3 and Green Mountain have been found to be the best late varieties. The growing of the seed plot is the more important since experience has shown that it is seldom practical to hold tubers from the first crop potatoes for seed.

Merely planting a seed plot will not insure high-yielding strains of potatoes alone. Good seed which has been treated with corrosive sublimate and properly cut together with proper cultivation and spraying are also necessary for the success of the project.

Care of the seed plot is outlined as follows by Mr. Olney:

"As soon as the potatoes are well above ground all plants should be removed which are stunted and show signs of the diseases known as mosaic or curly dwarf. This disease causes young plants to appear dwarfed and the leaves to curl downward and be much twisted. They also have an uneven yellow and green color. The disease causes the plants which it attacks to produce small, worthless tubers and is the principal cause of varieties "running out." The plants should be gone over again about twice before flowering in order to remove all diseased ones. At flowering time all plants should be removed which show a different flower color from that of the variety as these are mixtures. Especial care also should be taken to make an application of nicotine sulphate at the earliest appearance of aphid or leaf hoppers as these are difficult to control when they have become established.

"After the last undesirable plants have been removed all plants which appear especially healthy and vigorous should be marked. This should be done before danger of frost. Soon after the vines have been killed the marked hills may be dug. These will furnish seed stock for the seed plot to be planted the following July or August. The remainder of the crop from the seed plot should be saved for seed for the early field crop the following spring."

Men do very little bragging these days. It is more aristocratic to blow.

Before entering into the discussion of disarmament Mr. Harding should be suitably armed for the fray.

Some children that refuse to obey their parents are considered cute, until they reach the age when the parents do the obeying.

One hundred thousand people are to join in singing at Chicago's pageant of progress. Fortunately we are some miles removed.

Mr. Harding may be able to induce the world to disarm in so far as war is concerned, but he will never be able to disarm certain dominating housewives as long as their favorite weapon is able to wag.

Congress has appropriated huge sums of money for this, that and the other, but as our disabled and helpless overseas veterans do not come under either classification they are finding it increasingly difficult to come at all.

We learn from the secretary of the treasury that cleaner money is to be put into circulation. That is pleasing. When we get it it will be still more pleasing. But until we do, just keep right on sending in the dirty old stuff and we'll be eternally pleased.

Dictator Lenin finds that ruling the illiterate bolsheviks of Russia is a comparatively easy matter, but feeding them entails more brains than he has been able to inject into his "government." They are starving and appealing to America for food.

Whether it be fiction or fact, it is rather interesting to read one day that the interest on the ten billions of dollars owed us by the allies is not to be collected for fifteen years, and the next day to learn that Washington plans to use it in the payment of a bonus to ex-service men.

Small Town

Vs. Big City.

For years it has been a favorite amusement of the large city dailies to refer to the local news contained in the country press as "small town stuff."

It pleases the city dweller to read it at his breakfast table.

It emphasizes the superiority of "metropolitan wisdom."

And we of the country press are content to let it go at that; with a passing word or two of comment.

The "small town stuff" which furnishes so much amusement to our city friends may be homely in its phraseology—it may be unimportant as compared to the vital affairs of the world—but it possesses the merit of being the truth.

The average country publisher does not resort to misrepresentation and sensationalism in the columns of his paper. His news articles and items are composed of facts as he finds them, and they are not doctored or colored for the purpose of pleasing any class or faction, or for the building up of a huge subscription list.

When he takes a stand editorially on any public question, be it local, state or national, he has in view the welfare of the people as a whole, and not the interests of some political faction or machine.

His columns may contain an overplus of news, but such as there is may be read with perfect safety by the growing children of the community without parental fear of instilling questionable thoughts and desires in their budding minds.

His paper may be small, and provincial, but it is clean.

The reader is never at a loss to know whether or not a statement made by the editor is based upon fact or, whether it is composed principally of what is commonly known as "newspaper bunk."

The publisher of any big city daily who can legitimately and truthfully say as much for his own paper is at liberty to amuse himself at our expense to his heart's content.

It will be viewed by us in a spirit of fellowship and brotherly love.

Responsibility Of The Parent.

Many parents lose sight of the fact that the vacation period is one of grave danger to the growing child.

The boy or girl just out of school feels like the caged bird that is suddenly released from its captivity. It glories in its freedom to the exclusion of all else.

Many of the lessons in deportment that have been learned in the classroom are gradually forgotten as the child finds its way to the street. There is no room in its heart for anything but the glories of the present, unless the parental hand is ever guiding its steps. The future is a sealed book which will be opened only too soon for its purpose.

Herein the function of the parent becomes of double importance to the future life of the child, for the careful work and training of the teacher must be carried on through the days and weeks of the vacation period, not to the extent of hampering the child in its rest and recuperation from classroom confinement, or depriving it of the innocent pleasures of life, but rather the daily impressing upon its young mind the necessity for continuing the rules of conduct learned in its hours of study.

Children are quick to learn and equally quick to forget. An impression may sink deep today and be forgotten by tomorrow, but if it is repeatedly brought to the attention of the juvenile brain it will eventually take deep root and live.

The teacher is responsible to the parent for the proper instruction of the child during its hours of study, but the parent has a double responsibility—to both the teacher and the child—the responsibility of safeguarding the work of both.

Give Us Light.

The people of this country are in a maze of doubt and mystery over the millions of interest money that is due and to become due us on the ten billions owed to us by the allied governments of Europe.

It is the people's money, and yet the people are the last ones who are being afforded any light upon the subject.

The London Times is considered the world over to be a truthful paper, and the Times in its financial news makes the positive statement that arrangements are under way whereby the payment of interest is to be delayed for a period of fifteen years.

Our secretary of the treasury states otherwise, but at the same time he pays out nearly thirty-five millions of dollars to the British government in order to cancel a claim for transporting American troops and freight to France in British ships, when by every rule of right and justice he should have caused that claim to be credited against the billions the British government owes us.

Thirty-five millions would do wonders for the shamefully neglected sick and disabled ex-service men in this country, or it would furnish employment and relief to many of our idle millions of men who are facing destitution and want, but it was not used for either of these purposes, or for any other legitimate American purpose, so far as we can see.

Frankly, we do not understand it, and neither do the people.

We disclaim any intention or desire to attack the administration, for this is a time when we need cooperation in readjustment rather than criticism and discord, but unless the secretary of the treasury can furnish a legitimate and all-satisfying reason for his surprising and amazing action he is laying the administration open to serious attack from republicans as well as democrats.

We are Americans first, and partisans afterwards.

Give us light!

In Your Idle Hours.

While resting in the cool shade these hot days why not let your thoughts dwell upon this town and countryside—upon what they need, what you can do for them, and upon how you can spur others to greater exertions in behalf of our community life?

They need more thought, deeper concentration, greater action.

Many a great and ennobling deed receives its inception in an idle moment. The hours of work and action serve but to expand and develop it.

It might be so with that idle thought of yours, with this community of ours.

No town is ever so perfect but what it might become a hundred per cent more so. Even ours is no exception to the rule.

Cool off in the shade if you feel so inclined.

Let your thoughts wander afield, and gather in the ideas of fancy that may later crystallize into a greater and better community development.

We add a new coat of paint to our house and gaze upon the finished product with pride. Its improved appearance more than justifies the labor and expense.

And if improvement is good for the home of the individual, why not for the community as a whole?

Let your hours of idleness beget others of energy and aggressiveness.

It ennobles yourself and enhances your value to the community.

It develops the community and increases its value to you.

Eubanks

Mrs. Mack Eubanks, who has been critically ill for the past several days, died Saturday evening at seven o'clock. While her death had been expected, it came as a distinct shock to her many friends, who had hoped she might experience a turn for the better. The deceased was the widow of the late Mack Eubanks, who died four years ago at their home on the Lancaster pike. She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Guy Jones, another daughter died seven years ago. Former Senator R. L. Hubble is a brother. The deceased had been a life-long and faithful member of the Christian Church and was given to much charity and Christian work; she was a good neighbor; a splendid wife and a devoted mother and will be greatly missed in this community. The funeral was held Monday morning at the late residence with Dr. M. A. Hart, pastor, officiating. The burial followed in Buffalo Springs cemetery, Stanford. Mrs. Jones and other relatives have the tenderest sympathy of this entire community in their great bereavement.—Danville Advocate.

The remains were buried Sunday afternoon at 3 P. M., the American ceremonies were conducted by Commander Wm. F. Miller and Chaplain B. C. Ford. The pall bearers in uniform, being Richard Lackey, Nathan Simpson, Brewer Layton, Nelson Conn, Ash Killian and Chas. Land.

The flag bearer and his aides were Walter Bryant, Jesse Simpson and Story Herron.

The firing squad consisted of the following: Robt. Crutcher, T. Whitaker, Jesse Dollins, Ed Holtzclaw, J. C. Broadus, Virgil Reynolds, Pat Murphy and Billy Cox.

The two buglers were Edgar Creech and Cecil Henry.

GREAT PITY Necessary For 30,000 War Horses to be Killed In The East.

Horse lovers throughout the country have been shocked by Colonial Secretary Winston Churchill's announcement that 30,000 Army horses in Mesopotamia are to be killed because it is too expensive to bring them home.

It was explained they are mainly heavy draft horses for which there is no use in England and that had to be fed on imported fodder. The nearest possible markets are India or Egypt, but the difficulties and cost of transportation thence are said to be prohibitive.

Shipping men say it costs $200 to $250 to bring a horse from the East to England, not counting horsemen's wages.

The War Office view is that it is better for the horse to be killed humanely and scientifically than to be left in the hands of natives who would not care for them properly, and no one would suggest turning them adrift in the desert.

THIRTY-TWO TEAMS

Will Compete In State Fair Junior Judging Contest.

Thirty-two counties have signified their intentions of entering a team in the junior livestock judging contest to be held at the Kentucky State Fair, September 14, and eight have already begun the work of developing a team, according to an announcement by M. L. Hall, assistant state leader of junior agricultural club work from the College of Agriculture, who has been appointed superintendent of the contest. In spite of the fact that this is the first year that such an event has been planned in connection with junior farm work indications point to a successful contest, Mr. Hall said. Counties which are expected to be represented in the contest are:

Jefferson, Union, McCreary, McCracken, Christian, Washington, Marion, Fulton, Whitley, Fayette, Daviess, Pulaski, Todd, Carroll, Nelson, Barren, Wayne, Lenoir, Mason, Warren, Knox, Taylor, Muhlenburg, Ballard, Oldham, Shelby, Calloway, Boone, Kenton, Ohio, Campbell, and Crittenden. McCreary, Christian, Fulton, Fayette, Pulaski, Mason, Taylor and Boone counties have already begun the organization of their teams, according to the report.

Each county will be represented by a team made up of three boys or girls and one alternate which will judge eight rings of animals including two of beef cattle, two of dairy cattle, two of lard type hogs and two of mutton sheep. Prizes totalling $300 will be divided among the winning teams and the highest scoring individuals. A trophy valued at $50 also will be awarded to the winning team. At the present time it is the plan of the contest to have county farm agents hold community contests to select community teams and later hold county contests at which the community teams will compete. The teams to represent the various counties at the State contest will be selected after the county contests.

Happy Maid

Cook Comics

A cook is usually mistress of all she surveys in the realm of the home-kitchen and pantry. Cooking is a science that takes time to master but, when a woman learns to cook well she is strongly entrenched in her profession. In some families the housewife herself is the cook; while in others an employee is the commissary chief. Today, cooks are more or less transient guests, with the Eagle on the dollar flapping its wings to lure them to another domicile. Householders use tricks, diplomacy and maneuvers to keep the "kitchen canary" on the job. The jokesmiths of the world press find cookdom a fertile field for concocting funnies. Some of the laughs that come out of the kitchen are just as savory as the most delicious food. On the screen, these "cookies" are shown in "Topics of the Day" Films to entertain audiences everywhere. Below we serve cook jokes that furnish their own good references:

He Was Observant

MAY—"You men don't know a thing about cooking. Now, how would you dress a chicken?"
HOWARD—"With a fur collar in summer, and pumps and silk stockings in winter."—Morse Magazine.

The Buried Stage Coach

By HAROLD SINCLAIRE.

(© 1921, Western Newspaper Union.)

"You must not be discouraged, Abner," spoke Mrs. Waldron in her patient, sympathizing way.

"I'm not, mother," was the prompt but infinitely weary response. "It is not the loss of business, home and friends. What worries me is the fact that after all my sacrifices, I shall not be able to pay my creditors in full. It is a pretty heavy load for an old man like me to carry."

"Remember the promise: 'On whom God's hand resteth, hath God at his right hand.'"

Abner Waldron tried to smile bravely, kissed the dear old patient face of his helpmeet, and left the house for his accustomed stroll.

He had done very well in a business way, until a smooth, smart city promoter had come to Albion, with expansive ideas. He had branched out, the sleek schemer had reaped a rich harvest, and then—failure.

Abner had turned over every penny he had in the world. It paid up everything except a few thousand dollars. Mrs. Waldron had in her own right a small farm in an adjoining county. They had decided to go there, and were now on the eve of departure.

"It's the older children, Richard and Maud, that I care about," the thoughts of Abner were full of his close friends.

Abner evaded meeting his neighbors, and took a lonely route out of town. He was soon among the sand hills. He wanted to think, plan, and resign for the present, contentment for the future. It was a great sand district about Albion. Lying along the lake shore, air currents had piled up great yellow mountains of the shifting particles.

The bleak environment chilled him, but at the same time quieted. Alone and undisturbed, he reviewed all the past.

Then in a whimsical way a story of the long ago came to his memory. His father had been well high riding right among these treacherous sand hills nearly forty years since. The event was the sensation of the hour through the whole district. James Waldron had removed his little country bank to Albion from Sankatuck in the next county. Over $30,000 in gold had been carried in locked iron boxes on an old stage coach. Its driver had lost his way among the sand hills, a great storm had come up, and he was blown from his seat against a rock and rendered insensible.

When he came back to consciousness on the stage coach, the horses, the treasure, had disappeared. There was a search all over the country. It brought no results. With difficulty the banker met the great loss.

The sky had darkened while Abner sat dreaming. A blinding rain of sand cut his face. "This is getting serious," he exclaimed, as he slid nearly the length of a hill, to land in a gully between two towering mountains of sand.

"Why! I shall be engulfed! It is like quicksand!" he reflected in vivid alarm. He struggled on, came to a turn in the gully, and dimly made out a slanting mass of gnarled tree roots. Abner ran to it, slipped, a cavity was revealed, and he dropped into darkness fully 20 feet. He stood on a sandy foundation, apparently of some large sheltered void. Before him was an open shed supported by posts. Back of it was a great, lumbering, old-fashioned vehicle. Attached were the skeletons of a team of horses. Thrilled, amazed, in almost a shout the electrified observer gasped out:

"The lost stage coach!"

Yes, it could be no other—it was no other.

To this shelter on the night the bank was moved, the horses had strayed, to be enveloped, swallowed up in the great winding wreaths of sand, past rescue and sight until now. More matches, a closer inspection, and there, intact, just as they had been originally stowed, were the iron boxes. Abner found the bank treasure—his by right of discovery, his by right of legal inheritance.

So all the dark clouds passed away. Drooping root ends enabled the adventurer to regain the open air when the sandstorm was over, and the family roof was saved, and soon there were two joyful weddings.

Heavy Milk Producers Need Plenty Of Water

The importance of supplying dairy cows with an abundant supply of clean, cool water during the hot summer months is brought out by experiments which show that the amount of water required is in direct proportion to the amount of milk produced, according to specialists in the dairy department of the College of Agriculture. During the summer cows will require an amount of water equal to about three times the amount of milk produced. In one case a cow giving 27 pounds of milk drank 77 pounds of water each day. The same cow drank but 15 pounds of water daily when giving no milk. A cow producing 100 pounds of milk each day drank more than 250 pounds of water. Eighty-seven per cent of the milk produced by cow and nearly three-fourths of her body is water, the specialists say. The amount of water required by her is determined by the amount of milk she is yielding, the kind of feed she is receiving and weather conditions.

The wisest of men are the ones who say the least.

Some men achieve greatness thru the wisdom of others.

The pen is mightier than the sword, but most of us use a pencil or a typewriter.

A few people live for self alone, and the public is quite willing to let it go at that.

We term them the weaker sex, but many a poor devil wishes they were not half so strong.

There is a world of joy in the straight and narrow path, but who wants the whole earth?

They say a woman can't drive a nail, but most of them can drive their husbands to do it for them.

"OLD KENTUCKY HOME" IS SAVED

Sum Necessary for Purchase Of "Federal Hill" as State Shrine Is Secured.

Preservation of the "Old Kentucky Home," in Nelson county, as a Kentucky shrine, is assured. The commission appointed to raise the sum necessary to purchase the property makes this announcement in its preliminary report issued and made public recently as follows:

To the People of Kentucky:

This is a preliminary report of the results of activities during the month of May last of the "Old Kentucky Home" Commission, appointed by Governor Morrow under legislative authority, to devise and recommend a plan by which the Commonwealth of Kentucky could purchase the estate of "Federal Hill," in Nelson county, celebrated as the home that inspired and where was written and composed Stephen C. Foster's immortal song, "My Old Kentucky Home."

The deeply regretted death of the late Alvin Tobias Hert, an honored member and treasurer of the commission; the natural and desirable delay in completing and closing of accounts of some of the many centers of contribution, and the difficulty of getting a meeting of the commission in the vacation period, have operated to delay a full report, which will be made later in detail.

For the information of the public it can now be stated that a sufficient sum was contributed in small amounts by Kentuckians at home and by loving expatriates of Kentucky all over the Union to purchase Federal Hill, pay the expense incurred in the movement and leave a small margin sufficient to care for the estate until the Legislature shall assemble and determine upon a method for its preservation as a shrine of State pride and love of home.

The commission regrets very much that the contributions were not sufficient to provide means for desirable improvements and repair of Federal Hill, so that it might at once be put in a condition to present it to the commonwealth substantially restored and beautified as such a shrine and such a gift should be. As it is, and considering business conditions, the many calls for other purposes of more practical nature and the fact that small contributions were especially invited and large ones not stressed, the commission thinks the response was very generous and highly creditable to the people of Kentucky, and takes this opportunity to thank the thousands who gave their mites and their interest.

At the outset in March the sum of about $7,000 was privately contributed to the commission for the purpose of securing an option, and enough additional was borrowed to make a payment of $10,000 upon the purchase of Federal Hill and meet the expenses inseparable from the task of organizing the movement throughout the State. No salaries or allowances were made for any purpose whatsoever except for clerical employees, printing, postage, advertising and necessary cost of communication from the bureau organized and directed by Marvin H. Lewis, executive chairman.

There were received in contributions up to date (inclusive of such operating fund and a few yet outstanding pledges receivable from local committees and individuals) $60,800. A sum of $40,000 altogether has been ordered to be paid upon the $50,000 purchase price agreed upon for Federal Hill. When all these accounts are settled, the commission will be able to pay off the remaining $10,000 which is due upon the estate on or before July 1, 1922, and have a small sum left for its temporary care.

It was the earnest desire of the commission to provide funds sufficient to enclose the woodland of thirty-five acres of the estate immediately surrounding the home, construct a substantial roadway through it, make necessary repairs to the house, restoration of its contents and provide a proper tablet recording the purpose and significance of the voluntary popular subscription which made the preservation of "My Old Kentucky Home" possible.

These intentions unfortunately cannot be realized unless, indeed, those who have not contributed shall see proper to add such sums as they may determine to the list of those who have already generously given. A sum of about $10,000 is urgently needed for the purposes named. The commission will gladly receive and acknowledge further contributions to the fund, which may be sent to Mrs.

L. H. Gazlay, treasurer, 810 Columbia Building, Louisville, Ky. Mrs. Gazlay, who was secretary to Mr. Hert, has been elected treasurer in his succession to carry on the work with which she is perfectly familiar.

The commission wish to refer to the fact that there has been some criticism of the $50,000 purchase price of the Federal Hill as being excessive. The option to purchase was taken in the fall of 1920. As a farm and empty homestead for agricultural and dwelling purposes only, it is conceded that the place is worth considerably less than that sum. But the purchase brings to the commission and will carry with it to the State a large and very valuable collection of antique mahogany, rosewood and walnut furniture, rare and valuable portraits in oil by distinguished artists and many historical relics of national and State interest. While it is manifestly difficult to set any exact price upon treasures of this sort, the commission, acted upon the advice and assumption that these intimate artistic souvenirs of times and conditions imperishable in the memory of Kentuckians possessed a value to the State much greater than could be realized in the open market for antiques. They have reason to believe that this collection and the present cost of placing the house are worth more than the purchase price. As the home of a beautiful, historic ideal its value is inestimable, and every year will add to it.

In order to make secure these treasures until they can be properly protected the commission has instructed that the house at Federal Hill be closed to the public until such time as they have made final disposition of its occupation by the State, or upon such special occasions and under such limitations as it may direct.

In conclusion the commission would respectfully remind those who have not contributed that their contributions will be gratefully received, acknowledged and accounted for in a later detailed report.

America's Most Traveled Public Man.

(Philadelphia Public Ledger.)

The most traveled man in American public life is widely known and widely beloved. He has carried the most weight the furthest distance of any of his various compatriots. He has traveled nearly all his life in the interests of the public and now he is to retire from a life on the "rattlers"—as the traveling salesmen and the sports writers know the modern railway train—and take his place on the bench in the world's highest court—a position he likes better than the Presidency of the United States.

He is a pilgrim who has toiled over long roads since the days of youth. He has traveled on steam cars, electric cars, automobiles, steamships and electrically driven ships. Horses, donkeys, even balky mules have been the Alpha of the entourage of which he was the conspicuous Omega. Once he got stuck on a Western hillside in a muddy slough. They retrieved his stalled motor car only after he had climbed down into that adhesive Iowa mud that sticketh closer than a brother, but the mud was not altogether to blame, for he is what the followers of a Dempsey or a Carpenter call a "heavyweight."

In his pilgrimage from a Cincinnati law office to the mountain top of fame's immortal glory he has witnessed the evolution of the facilities of travel. In his day the airbrake of Westinghouse, the giant steel steed of Baldwin and Rogers, the palace car of Pullman with all its comfort and convenience, and finally the smokeless, high-powered electric train made possible by a Steinmetz or an Edison, have come to supplant the antiquated wooden coach "crawler" of yesterday. The steamship on which he sailed to Europe on his honeymoon is a pigmy compared to the giant leviathan on which one now travels to the far corners of the earth.

The only modern means of conveyances of which he has not availed himself is the swift canvas winged eagle of the clouds—the airplane, but as he says, "my style of architecture is not adapted to the flying machine—I would capsize the stabilizer of them."

Other public men in the national life of these United States have traveled long and far, but they are "also rans" in the lists of long time, long distance touring champions in the tournament of Uncle Sam. Theodore Roosevelt made pilgrimages into the heart of the African and South American jungles. Woodrow Wilson essayed boldly forth across troubled waters to the peace tables of Europe. William Jennings Bryan for years has moved hither and thither over his native health with the bell ringers and the glee clubs of the chautauqua circuit.

But all of them yield the palm to this most traveled man in American public life, who has carried the most weight the furthest distance of any of his various compatriots in avoirdupois. Now you have guessed his name. Yes, William Howard Taft, now Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court.
